

Danielle Gray, currently a kindergarten teacher at Woodholme Elementary in Baltimore County, graduated from Towson University with a Bachelors Degree in Early Childhood Education in 2005. Danielle was a member of MESA while attending Western High School in Baltimore City. Although she did not choose a career in engineering, she feels that the skills, conferences, knowledge, and networking opportunities that MESA offered helped to cultivate her into a young professional with the ability to inform young people of the importance of mathematics, engineering and science in their everyday lives and encourage them to pursue careers in these fields. Danielle's outside interests include reading, spending time with family and friends and traveling.
